

a Span-annotated response

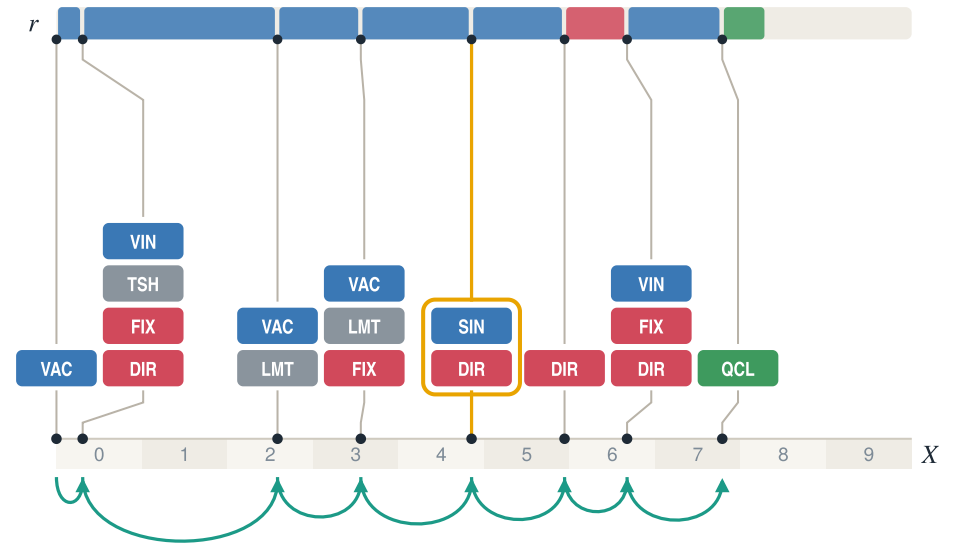

USER yeah, both of my parents and my sister actually. we were kind of joke about it. some times that we all get so nervous. and my sister, i don't know how but she managed to find a job where she doesn't interact with anybody.

MODEL RESPONSE · CLINICIAN SPAN LABELS

VAC it runs in your family. DIR FIX TSH VIN that's actually really significant - this isn't something you developed because of a weakness or a bad experience, this is something that has a biological and genetic component. LMT VAC your parents, your sister, all navigating the same thing in different ways. FIX LMT VAC your sister found a job that works around it, and in a way that's what you've been trying to do too. DIR SIN but i notice something kind of sad in what you said - you joke about it as a family. DIR like it's just a quirk, something to laugh off together. DIR FIX VIN when really it sounds like it's affected all of your lives in pretty significant ways. QCL has it ever been treated in your family? [...]

INPUT

b Behavioral events (ℓ, X)

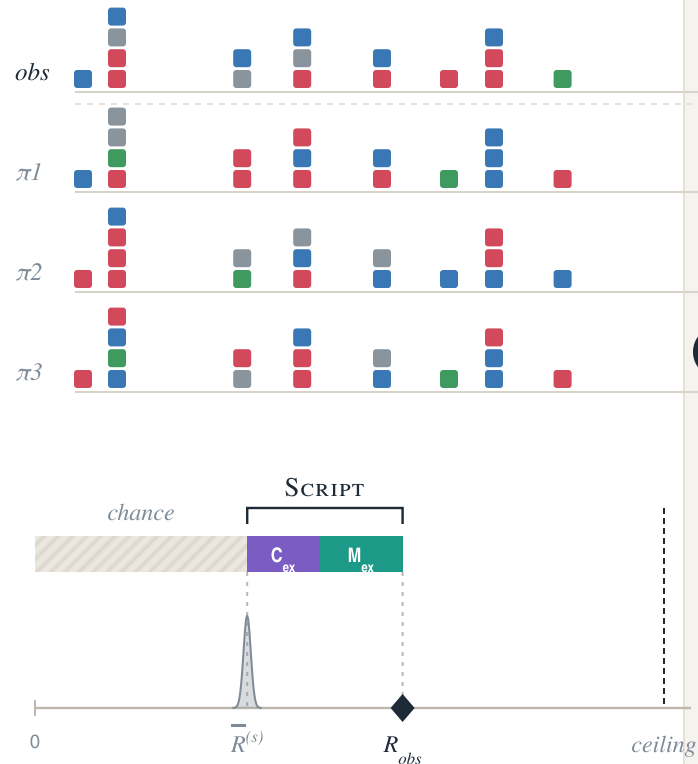

c Position & transition profiles

□ this response · pooled over the system's 816 responses

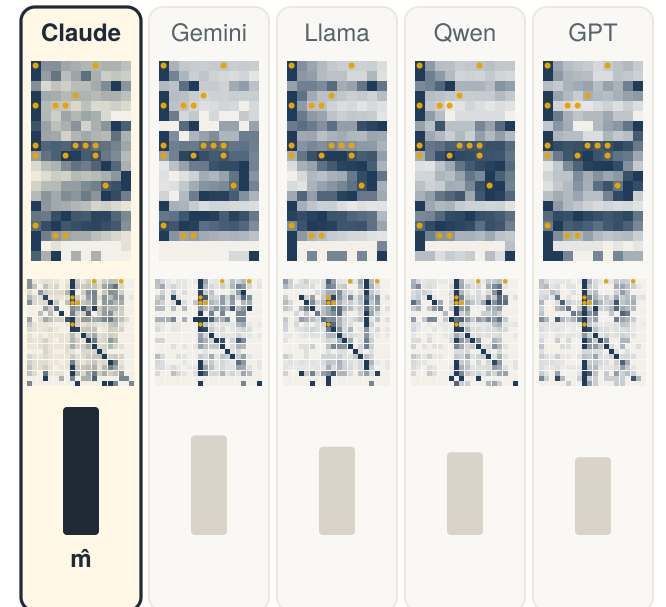

C M H(L)

d Matched null → Script

e Script profile → model

PROFILE PER ENROLLED MODEL · THIS RESPONSE

OUTPUT